

Hector's Visioning Story
April 14, 2005

Had been in banking and wire transfers.

First president was not good in administration, but divided and conquered in relationships.

Very acquiescent in crisis situations.

Liked crisis management, but parachuted himself out.

Like a grandfatherly person.

Left the Texico Conference in a complete state of disarray.

Next conference president: not interested in sugar-coating problems.

Communicated problems and authentically lived the truth.

Communicated the truth even though it caused great consternation with people.

Always communicated hope: spoke of another conference in worse conditions and gave encouragement.
